

TRANSITIONAL HOUSING – APARTMENTS

For many veterans and military families, transitioning to civilian life presents many obstacles, including finding an affordable place to live and securing employment to support themselves and their families. To address these challenges, we are launching a new program that will assist in the successful transition of recently separated veterans. Our Transitional Housing – Apartments will provide veterans with a rent/utilities free apartment for one year, while giving them the opportunity to utilize both employment and financial counselor services to help achieve stability and chart a path to long-term post military success.

Who is eligible?

- Veteran, with or without family within 4 years of discharge
- Veteran within 200 miles of Home of Record preferred
- Veteran with honorable discharge (to include general under honorable conditions)
- Veteran who is not eligible for retirement pay

Until recently, Army veteran Ariel Thomas wasn't sure what life had in store as she transitioned to civilian life after a decade of military service.

Ariel's future became more clear when she was accepted into Operation Homefront's Transitional Housing – Apartments program.

"Before Operation Homefront, I was stressing about home, money, food – all the things you need," Ariel said. "They took away that stress for me and allowed me to be able to take care of myself."

After graduating from high school, Ariel continued her family's tradition of military service. Her parents were both career Marines.

Before entering the TH-A program, Ariel lived in a hotel but knew her budget couldn't sustain that.

"I had no clue what I was going to do, but the apartment was ready right when I had to move out. And now I have a home, and my son is with me."

Ariel is grateful for the opportunity and for ongoing support from Operation Homefront.

"I don't think the donors realize how much they help people," she said. "This has changed my life."
